By Rebecca M. Johnson

Extension Homemakers were warmly welcomed by the owners of de John Bath Boutique in Lynchburg on Monday. The twenty - five homemakers toured the store, were shown new accessories for the bathroom, and chatted informally with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Raby, Sr. The Rabys showed how their seleciton of linens, shower curtains, window curtains, and even accessories such as trash cans, soap dishes, and tissue holders, were all color and design coordinated. The permanent fixture on display were elegant and unusual and showed how variety and excitement can personalize even the dullest and smallest bathroom.

Jean Smith, Interior Decorator at The Post Script, was also present to answer any questions on interior design, relating to the bathroom as well as any other room of the home. Ms. Smith told ways of combining color and suggestions on how to make a small room appear larger.

Publicity on Textbook Adoption

Textbook Adoptions are being made in the areas of foreign language, English, History, Government and Geography for secondary schools; and English and Social Studies for elementary schools. At six year intervals, textbooks in each content area are replaced by newer editions. The State Board of Education makes a selection of publishers whose books will appear on the approved list. From this list, each division makes the choice for its schools.

The local selection follows numerous committee meetings and careful examination of materials from each publisher. Personnel from the State Department of Education will meet with each Committee to assist in assessing the texts as to their value in implementing the philosophy of the county educational system. Committee recommendations will be presented to the members of the School Board for their approval for adoption.
